Dual vocational training – an investment in the future

The German dual vocational training is unique in the world. It combines practical experience provided in a company with theoretical knowledge from a vocational school. More than 50 % of all young people in Germany opt for a vocational training and lay with it a foundation for their career.

Around 350 occupations are available in the fields of crafts, commerce and industry. The vocational training takes 2 to 3,5 years. It is compensated from day one. Skilled professionals can expect good and well-paid career opportunities.

→ Careers that follow a vocational training are e.g.: automobile mechatronics technicians, dental technicians, specialists in the hospitality services and hotel industry, plant mechanics, pastry cooks.

A dual vocational training is exactly what you want?

The umbrella brand ARRIVO combines multiple projects that provide counselling, placement and coaching in order to help you to reach this target. With the project ARRIVED the BGZ sets particular emphasis on coaching during the vocational training. Companies that want to train refugees and seek advice are welcome to contact us.

ARRIVED supports you with custom-made coaching during the vocational training. We

- create individual training and education plans, depending on your needs
- organize German language and mathematics courses, workshops and trainings
- refer to tutors that can give individual homework support
- help to apply for support benefits and services
- take care of everyday problems such as finding accommodation, leisure opportunities or visiting public authorities

Eligible to participate in ARRIVED are refugees who have

- at least a B1 German level
- graduated from school or have been enrolled in school for at least 8 years
- great motivation and willingness to actively take part in the coaching process
